Take a Landscape Painting Class in Tuscany

Imagine standing on a Tuscan hillside, looking out over a vineyard, with that gorgeous golden light all around. Instead of gasping at the view for a few moments, you are at an easel for a couple of tranquil hours, capturing the scene with your brush.

New York artists Maddine Insalaco and Joe Vinson run weeklong landscape-painting workshops, for beginning to advanced students, where this dream comes true. Creativity flows under their inspired instruction. The program includes accommodations in a converted convent and out-of-this-world meals that come direct from the bounty of the surrounding farmlands.
